

BULL MOOSE HERD STAMPEDES HERE

Actor William Gillette and Others
Address Crowd of 3,000 Persons.

FUND OF $1,000 IS RAISED

One of the Most Enthusiastic Meetings of Campaign Held in Rifles Armory.

A crowd of Bull Moose that overflowed the seats, balcony, window ledges, and balustrades of National Rifles Armory and streamed down the stairs to overflow in turn the hall beneath, gathered last night to hear several well-known speakers tell the tale of the newly baptized party and bring wreck and ruin down on the heads of the two old-line parties. The foremost speakers were William Gillette, the actor, who recently has cast his destinies with the Bull Moose, and Senator Moses E. Clapp of Minnesota.

It was announced from the platform that a fund of $1,000 was raised and which would be sent to the National committee for the Roosevelt cause in commemoration of the colonel's fifty-fourth birthday, which falls on October 27.

There were in the neighborhood of 3,000 persons in the audience, and neither the smaller nor the least enthusiastic part was made up of women. They applauded the most abstract political doctrines, and they shouted themselves hoarse at the defense of that part of the Progressive platform which proposes to place in their hands the ballot. Their treble "hurrahs" and "huzzahs" punctured the speeches, and the arms of many were decorated with the red bandana, the symbol of Bull Moosism.

Full of Interest.
The meeting—both of the meetings, for the matter of that—was never lacking in interest. When an enthusiastic audience was not shouting itself to the doors of the hospital with acclaim, some unbelief from Missouri was interrupting the speaker with a demand to be "shown" how the Progressive party was to accomplish all of its aims with the rest of the body doing its best to drown him out with cries for silence.

The first speaker of the evening was William Gillette. He was introduced after a song led by Sidney Lloyd Wrightson, by Frank J. Hogan, Progressive national committeeman.

Gillette's delivery was different from anything heard before on a campaign platform, but his attack was made from a different point. Gone was the impassioned oratory of the stump speaker, gone his flamboyant gestures, gone his tremulous tones. Gillette's success lay not in the crushing force of it, but in the dextrous way he displays his ideas by sudden twists and clever contrasts.

The actor's address was not so much in extolment of the party in whose interest he spoke as in attack on the party now in power and the conditions that have obtained under it.

"The sinister bunch of 400 that sits in Washington within the walls of the Capitol," meaning, of course, Congress, "which can only be controlled by threat of exposure" and "the utterly contemptible courts of justice," which he showed by figures the least efficient courts for the detection and punishment of crime in the world, were the two institutions to receive the burden of Mr. Gillette's wrath.

No less emphatic were the remarks of the Minnesota Senator who picked to pieces the tenants of the Democratic party with the remark that it had gasped its last amid the chugs of its own steam roller it had operated so successfully in the Chicago convention, "The National Disgrace."

Gov. Wilson was attacked because he was said to propose the control of the trusts with States' rights principles in force and because, Senator Clapp said, he had been in the executive seat of the State of New Jersey, the hotbed of the money powers, for two years without striking one blow at them.

The speakers on the platform in the auditorium were Frank J. Hogan, William Gillette, Mrs. William H. Beck, Senator Clapp, and Dr. J. R. Wilder. All of these, with the exception of Mrs. Beck and Dr. Wilder, repeated their speeches before the overflow meeting in the hall on the ground floor, and besides them, Gallin L. Tate, of Maryland, and Harry I. Quinn, candidate for Congress from the Seventeenth District of Maryland, made addresses.

Mrs. William H. Beck, widow of Gen. Beck, and mother of Paul Beck, the army aviator, spoke on the character of Roosevelt. Among the notables on the platform were Admiral Chester, U. S. N.; Brig. Gen. Morton, U. S. A.; Mrs. Selva Lockwood, and others. A unique feature was the presence of the Jane Addams singers, who, both up and down stairs, led in the singing of patriotic songs.

BULGARIANS SHELL ADRIANOPLE PORTS

Gates, they discard their guns and every ounce of impedimenta that might retard their flight.

The King of Greece, emulating the Czar of Bulgaria, is traveling north to-night with the intention of taking personal command of his troops and remaining at the front throughout the war. Queen Olga is working tirelessly at Athens, directing special church services for the families of the troops and recruiting food and hospital supplies to be sent to the front.

Crown Prince Constantine of Greece is the hero of the hour in Athens. His occupation of the city of Serbia is regarded as a crushing blow to the war. With the taking of Scutari and Uskup, now regarded as inevitable in the next two days, Turkey's control of the west including Albania and the greater part of Macedonia will have been taken off by the Balkan allies.

The capture of Serbia gives the Greeks unobstructed access to Macedonia.

Offers Prayers for Dead.
Sofia, Oct. 25.—To-day was given up by the residents of Sofia to the offering of prayers for the repose of the dead soldiers of the Bulgarian army, and prayers for the continued success of the living. The estimate of the losses at Kirk-Killiseh that is considered nearest accurate places the total Bulgarian dead and wounded at 1,400 and the Turkish at 12,000. Estimates of the number of Turkish prisoners taken vary from 1,000 to 40,000.

TURKS FALL BACK.

Belgrade, Oct. 25.—The Serbian forces late to-day occupied a commanding position between Kumanova and Uskup. The Turks are falling back toward Uskup before the combined advance of the allied Bulgarian and Serbian armies. The Serbian artillery, commanded by the Crown Prince, has effectively shelled several outposts, operating independently of the main allied force, which is commanded by Gen. Stefanovich.

Tank Army Camps.
Constantinople, Oct. 25.—The main Turkish army, under Gen. Abdullah Pasha, is reported encamped to-night at Demotica, twenty-five miles south of Adrianople. It is officially stated that Gen. Abdullah Pasha, whose command is the largest unit of Turkish soldiers in the field, deems the present forces defending Adrianople sufficient, and will detach no more of his men to advance to that city as re-enforcements unless it comes necessary through an expected Bulgarian victory at the outer circle of forts.

The garrison at Adrianople numbers 60,000 men, 150,000 troops are guarding the line of communications to the south and another of 60,000 men are stationed between Adrianople and Lule Burgas. Hundreds of fugitives from Kirk-Killiseh have arrived in Constantinople.

Drive Turks Back.
Cettinje, Oct. 25.—The Ottoman troops defending the town of Koplik fled late to-day to Scutari, twelve miles away, before a fierce attack of Montenegrins under Gen. Lasovitch. The towns of Zogai and Murcham, southwest of Scutari, have been captured by Gen. Martinovitch.

Greeks Bury Dead.
Athens, Oct. 25.—Crown Prince Constantine telegraphs that the burial of the massacred inhabitants of Serbia was completed to-day, and the crown prince and his staff attended a special service for the dead at the Greek church in Serbia.

May Cause Trouble.
London, Oct. 25.—Despite its pledge to the powers following a naval demonstration off the island of Crete, the Greek government has appointed Stephen Diagamis governor general of the island. Serious trouble is expected.

ATTACKED BY NIHILIST.

St. Petersburg, Oct. 25.—A persistent rumor was afloat in Odessa to-day that the little Czarovitch Alexis was the victim of a nihilist attack. The Odesk-Liatok published an article to-day saying that the attack on the boy was the culmination of a threat made when the child was born. A nihilist named Wassiliew, who was bayoneted in the left groin during a fight with Russian soldiers before the little Alexis was born, is said to have attacked the child in a spirit of revenge. He was captured later, according to the rumor.

The Novoe Vremya, in its issue to-day, demanded that the Czar make public announcement of the cause of the Czarovitch's illness.

The campaign through New Jersey may be made by automobile, unless the jumps are too great. In which event the railroads will be used. The Governor is rather anxious to make the tour by motor.

"The New Jersey trip will be made in the interest of the legislative ticket," he said. "We must have a Democratic Senate."

WILSON CAMPAIGN GIFT RETURNED

Cyrus H. McCormick's $12,500 Sent Back by Cleveland H. Dodge.

NOT THE GOVERNOR'S ORDERS

Princeton, N. J., Oct. 25.—The $12,500 contributed by Cyrus H. McCormick, head of the Harvester Trust, to Gov. Wilson's preconvention campaign fund, has been returned to Mr. McCormick by Cleveland H. Dodge, the New York banker, through whom it was contributed, but the return was not made, as was suggested by William J. Bryan, at the suggestion of Gov. Wilson himself.

The Governor made this clear in a statement which he issued late to-night. Indeed, it is doubtful if the candidate would have asked to have the money refunded to the giver under any circumstances.

It will be recalled that at the time National Chairman McCombs, testifying before the Clapp investigating committee, gave a list of the contributors to the Governor's campaign fund, which included the names of Mr. Dodge and Mr. McCormick, the Governor scrutinized the list when it was presented to him and remarked that it was a "mighty fine list of names."

The money was returned to Mr. McCormick voluntarily by Mr. Dodge and for the purpose of relieving Gov. Wilson of any possible embarrassment. This supposed embarrassment, however, was purely imaginary on the part of Mr. Dodge. The Governor's statement follows:

"The money was returned, but not at my request. It was done upon the initiative of Mr. Dodge and Mr. McCormick themselves. It was characteristic of them. They have illustrated again what they illustrated so often while they were trustees of the university during my presidency here. They have always tried to act in such a way as to help me and yet leave me free."

Speaks in Philadelphia.

Gov. Wilson announced to-day that he would assume an active part in the campaign, speaking at two meetings in Philadelphia on Monday evening and campaigning through New Jersey during the remainder of the week, excepting next Thursday, when he will speak at Madison Square Garden, New York. The Philadelphia rallies will be at the Academy of Music, where independent Republicans will assemble, and at Convention Hall, where the Democrats will hold forth. Convention Hall has a seating capacity of 19,000.

"The Philadelphia engagement is one of the strongest he has ever reserved two months ago," said the Governor, "and where I pledged myself at that time, and an honorable escape seems impossible, and, moreover, Col. Roosevelt's strength has increased so rapidly that he should be back in the campaign again next week. Of course, if his health should go down again, I would have to cancel even the Philadelphia date. The colonel has such a splendid physique, however, that he will hardly suffer any further ill-effects of his injury."

The campaign through New Jersey may be made by automobile, unless the jumps are too great. In which event the railroads will be used. The Governor is rather anxious to make the tour by motor.

"The New Jersey trip will be made in the interest of the legislative ticket," he said. "We must have a Democratic Senate."

HASKINS MAY BE NAMED.

Harvard Man Mentioned to Head Johns Hopkins.

Baltimore, Md., Oct. 25.—Although R. Brent Keyser, president of the board of trustees of Johns Hopkins University, denied to-day that any selection of a president for the institution had been made by the trustees, it is believed that the position will be offered to Dr. Charles H. Haskins, of Harvard. It is understood that the name of Dr. Haskins has been mentioned by the trustees at their meetings. Dr. Haskins is now dean of the Harvard graduate school, a graduate of Hopkins and a former instructor. Dr. James Rowland Angell, dean of the faculty of the University of Chicago, is on the trustee's list of possibilities.

PROBE COMMITTEE TO TAKE RECESS

Former Senator Beveridge to Tell About Campaign Funds.

With the testimony of former Senator Albert J. Beveridge and Henry C. Starr, of Indiana, to-day, the Senate committee investigating campaign funds probably will take a recess subject to the call of the chairman, which will mean an adjournment until after the election.

Only one witness was heard to-day, Henry C. Pettit, former United States Marshal for Indiana, confirmed the testimony of other friends of Beveridge that the Senator received $75,000 in contributions from relatives or personal friends in his campaign for re-election to the Senate in 1904. Mr. Pettit confirmed the testimony of the other witnesses from Indiana that this amount was returned after election. That none of the money was used in the campaign and Beveridge returned the identical exchange sent to him.

One of the donors was George W. Perkins who sent $20,000. Mr. Pettit, who had charge of Senator Beveridge's campaign for re-election that year, testified that the Perkins contribution came in three separate drafts of $10,000 each. The witness testified that while he looked after Beveridge's campaign for re-election, Henry C. Starr was interested in the election of the other Senator to fill a prospective vacancy due to the candidacy of the then Senator C. W. Fairbanks for Vice President.

Starr will be the first one of the witnesses so far called in the Indiana matter who is not a political friend of Beveridge. He has consistently opposed Beveridge and may give some important testimony. Starr no longer resides in Indiana. He is in Chicago as attorney for the Wisconsin Central Railroad.

The committee will meet a hour earlier to-day to accommodate the two Indiana witnesses.

Rescue Fishermen.
New York, Oct. 25.—The Ward Line, Bayamo, Capt. Lambert, which arrived to-day from Tampico and Progresso, reported that on Thursday, October 24, she sighted the oyster smack, Crown, of Chincoteague, Va., in a sinking condition.

A lifeboat was launched and the smack's crew of two rescued. They are M. M. Mason and H. L. Jones. The men had clung to their water-tight crate for two days.
